VOLUME XXI—No. 73. CHARLEROI, WASHINGTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA, MONDAY, AUGUST 30, 1920. TWO CENTS

WASHINGTON COUNTY COURTS CLOSED TERM ON SATURDAY

All Cases Listed Tried. Donora Man Sentenced to Ten Years

JURY OUT BUT 20 MINUTES

Guy Piccalo, of Donora, who was tried before Judge McIlvaine on a charge of homicide, was convicted Saturday of second degree murder and sentenced to serve not more than 20 nor less than 10 years in the Western penitentiary. The jury was out about 20 minutes.

Piccalo was accused of killing Joe Crisafi at Monongahela on the night of April 29 last. Piccalo claimed that he had shot Crisafi in self-defense.

The last case heard of the August term of criminal court was on all day Saturday before Judge Brownson. It was a neighborhood fight. Well known Monongahela residents were involved. Ray Smith charged Margaret McCanch, wife of Alexander McCanch, with assault and battery, Mrs. McCanch charged Smith with aggravated assault and battery. The parties are from Monongahela, and occupied a double house. It appeared that Mrs. McCanch owned a dog, which, it is alleged, started the trouble. There had been, however, ill feeling between the two families for some time.

The dog brought matters to a head. One evening Smith seized a broom and chased the dog. It ran up on the McCanch back porch. Mrs. McCanch came out of her house and seized another broom. According to Smith's story she attacked him. Mrs. McCanch denied this. She said that all she did was to ward off the blows Smith was trying to inflict on the dog with his broom. During the mix-up, Smith fell down the cellar stairs into the McCanch cellar. It was apparently a real fight.

The entire neighborhood took sides in the affair, and a number of witnesses was called by both parties to the scrabble. The Smiths tried to show that the dog was savage and dangerous, and a menace to the public.

The trial consumed all of Saturday, a verdict being reached about 4:30 o'clock. The jury was not long in reaching an agreement. In the case of Ray Smith against Margaret McCanch, the verdict was guilty, and the costs were equally divided between Smith and Mrs. McCanch. In the other suit in which Smith was the private prosecutor, the verdict was not guilty and the costs were put on Mrs. McCanch.

The case against Andy Katalinas, charged with violating the motor vehicle laws, has been settled, and the case against E. S. Sloniker, charged with assault and battery with intent, John Fry, charged with aggravated assault and battery and Lillie Thompson, charged with assault with fire arms and pointing firearms, has been continued.

The court granted a continuance in the case against William H. Tobin, of Donora, who is held for the killing of Mike Moki, at Donora. The latter was shot and killed in Tobin's backyard. He alleged that Mike was attempting to break into his chicken house.

COAL PRODUCTION SHOWS A REDUCTION

A slump in the coal output for the week ending August 21 of more than 800,000 tons, or 7 per cent, from the 1920 record established the preceding week, was shown in a report issued on Saturday by the Geological Survey, placing the week's total at 10,981,000 tons. The decline was attributed in part to the new outbreak of the day men's strike in Indiana, which by the end of the week had tied up four-fifths of the mines in that state.

WAGON MEN WILL FIGHT NEW ORDER

The ruling of the Interstate Commerce that no open top cars were to be furnished to mines unless either equipped with an elevator or tipple arrangement from which to load their cars is made consonant with the recent order of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, answer to which has been filed by a number of organizations of wagon mine owners. The order of the Interstate Commerce Commission means, according to interested parties, that the association will start battle with the Interstate Commerce Commission and can be expected to file answers to the order in the near future.

Of the 7,500 mines in the United States, 3,000 are affected by the order. The Commission said the order resulted from undue delay and wasteful use of equipment and congestion of traffic when such mines are not in a position to load cars upon private tracks. The wagon mine owners deny this statement, which they hope to prove at a hearing before the commission. During the war and of governmental control they were allowed an addition of 75 cents a ton to help bear expense in loading in box cars. Under an open market they contend that the ruling discriminates and is prejudicial.

TO INVESTIGATE CARSON DROWNING

Coroner William Greenlee will hold an inquest here Tuesday night to investigate the death of Kerfoot Carson, who was drowned recently at the bathing beach.

Miss Mildred Yates the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Yates entertained the guests by dancing the "snake" dance at the opening of Might's Auditorium Saturday night.

How Eligible Women May Be Properly Assessed

Tuesday and Wednesday, August 31, and September 1, women may be assessed in any one of the 153 polling places throughout the county. One polling place is situated in each election district. Information as to a person's polling place may easily be secured by inquiring of some male voter. The polling places will be open on the two days from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon and from 6 to 9 o'clock at night. Women wishing to be assessed should appear in person, though one adult may assess all eligible members of his or her family.

Those appearing for assessment will be required to give their names, street addresses, voting districts, wards, borough or township. They must be at least 21 years of age, resident of Pennsylvania a year at least one year, and of the district at least two months before November 2. Foreign-born women may vote on naturalization papers of their husbands or fathers.

Women may pay taxes, 75 cents, at the time of registering and secure a tax receipt order. It costs nothing to be assessed, but taxes must be paid on or before October 2 in order to be qualified to vote November 2.

Women holding property tax receipts, whether they are sole or joint owners of the property, and women the ages of 21 and 22 need not be assessed. The former may register and vote on the presentation of the tax receipt and the latter on age. Women of both classes should register in order to vote.

Many County Schools Will Open Today For Term

Today will see the opening of many of the public schools of the county. While the majority of the schools will open today those of Charleroi will not commence until next week. Many of those not opening the coming week will commence on Tuesday, September 7 on account of Labor Day Celebrations. The schools of Washington will not open this week as scheduled on account of the Washington Fair.

School authorities at Bentleyville report that the public schools of that borough will open on time today, although it was feared for some time that the opening would be delayed on account of the scarcity of laborers in erecting the three story temporary buildings which will be used until a new school building is erected, the school property on Main street having been destroyed by fire some time ago. County Superintendent Crumrine reports that there is a dearth of both high school and grade teachers this year. There is need of at least 25 teachers for the present term.

BELIEVE THAT MANY WOMEN WILL REGISTER

It is believed that many of the women of Charleroi will avail themselves of the privilege of voting at the coming election. Already quite a number have been registered and assessed, and it is expected that registers and assessors will be kept quite busy on Tuesday and Wednesday in placing the names of women on the poll books who desire to vote at the November election. The registers report that they have been received very cordially by the women in making their assessments, and no trouble has been experienced in any way. While some of the fair sex are somewhat reticent about expressing any desire to vote, there are others who are anxious to enjoy the privilege and who are taking great interest in the new honors conferred upon them. It is estimated that the vote of Washington county will be increased many thousands by reason of the women voting this fall.

FINAL STEPS TAKEN IN THOMPSON ACCOUNTS

After several years of litigation the bankruptcy court Saturday took final steps in closing accounts against J. V. Thompson, bankrupt Uniontown millionaire. Claims totaling $18,018,008.51 were filed against the former coal and coke monarch. Out of these claims only $4,143,388.06 the balance in the hands of the trustees, can be paid. Claims prior to December 7, 1915, in various courts of Pennsylvania are given priority. The remaining claims are disposed of at a dividend rate of five per cent.

The trustees are ordered by Referee In Bankruptcy Blair to issue checks in payment of the claims on Sept 15, 1920.

FRACTURED SKULL RESULTS IN ALLENPORT MAN'S DEATH

Struck by Pole while Riding on Steps of Pittsburgh Street Car

DIES LATER IN THE HOSPITAL

Leslie Willis, colored, aged 38 years, of Allenport is dead as the result of being struck by a trolley wire pole while riding on a Pittsburgh Railway car to Charleroi Saturday night.

Willis boarded a north bound car at Allenport with the intention of coming to Charleroi to spend the evening. The car being crowded at the time it was necessary for Willis to stand on the steps.

When near Beechwood park stop the body of Willis extended too far out and as the poles at that place are near the car line he was struck as the car was passing. He was immediately brought to Fifth street, Charleroi from where he was taken to the hospital in the ambulance, where it was found that he was suffering from a fractured skull, from which he died at 10:30.

The body was taken to Crowleys undertaking rooms and prepared for burial. Coroner Greenlee was notified and will hold an inquest Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Willis was employed at the Allenport plant of the Pittsburg Steel Products company. He is survived by a wife and cousin, who reside at Allenport.

PITTSBURGH PAYS 16 CENTS FOR MILK

The price of milk to the consumer in Pittsburgh for the month of September will remain at 16 cents, the same as in August. The Milk Producers Association of Allegheny county at its meeting on Saturday agreed to a price of 16 cents a quart and 10 cents a pint. The dealers however will have to pay 37 cents a gallon for 3.5 per cent butter-fat milk, and 391-2 cents for a gallon of untested milk, an increase of 1 cent a gallon over August.

STRUCK BY CYCLE; DIES IN HOSPITAL

Walter Yazan, aged 7 years, of Third street Monessen was struck by a motorcycle yesterday afternoon on the Pricedale road which resulted in his death.

The young boy was riding on the side of a buggy along the road when the motorcycle driven by Adrons Merici of Ashtabula, Ohio came along. Evidently thinking there was no danger the boy ran from behind the buggy directly in front of the motorcycle. Mericci immediately picked up the boy and summoned help. Dr. A. O. Davis was in Pricedale at the time and gave the boy all the attention possible, and he was rushed to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital where it was discovered he was suffering from a fractured skull, from which he died at 1:30 this morning.

At the time of the accident the name of the boy nor his place of residence was not known. After his death his body was taken to the Crowley mortuary where he was identified this morning about 10 o'clock. The body will be taken to Monessen from where interment will be made.

No blame is attached to Mericci, as according to witnesses the boy ran directly in front of the machine and it was impossible for Mericci to avoid hitting him. No arrest was made but at the hospital Mericci signified his willingness to return at any time.

EXPECT FAST RACING AT WASHINGTON FAIR

The added money feature in each race of the tenth annual harness meet of the Washington Fair Association in connection with the annual exhibition opening at Arden Downs on Tuesday has proved a big magnet for horsemen, for it is assured that the number of entrants at the meeting there of the Lake Erie and Keystone Short Ship Circuit will be the largest ever presented at the Washington Fair. If weather conditions are favorable the attendance record will be broken, it is believed.

Mrs. George Sewell, daughter Grace and son Carl, with Miss Margaret Ellison and Archie Ellison motored to Tarentum Sunday where they will visit with Mrs. Charles Thompson.

RAILROAD MEN GET THEIR BACK PAY

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company on Saturday distributed to employes the bulk of the back pay ordered in the decision of the United States Railway Labor Board of July 26. Approximately $23,000,000 is to be distributed to the 275,000 to 280,000 workers. The railroad board' award was retroactive to May 1, s the payments made on Saturda were for May, June and July. Th amount of back pay received by the employes averaged from $85 to $90 per man. The first pay in August included the increase granted by the Board, and will continue to be a part of the wages of the men from this time on.

A DRY SENATOR'S WET FARM

According to the Mount Pleasant, Texas, Daily Hustler, a revenue officer and a local constable have "captured a 130-gallon still, seven barrels of mash and 400 gallons of whisky on Senator Morris Sheppard's farm in Morris County." It is further stated that the still was brought to Mount Pleasant on a truck and is now on display in the First National Bank. So vast a store and the means of adding to it at need rather looks toward manufacture for sale. But even if the Senator can prove intent of home consumption only by pointing to a numerous progony and a large family connection, he will still find himself embarrassed as an ostentatious "dry" and leader in the fight for prohibition. He might of course hint at a "frame-up" by his "wet" opponents, but few can believe that in these times 400 gallons of liquid treasure would be sacrificed for such a purpose.

The true explanation is doubtless presented by the New York Times when it observes that "some of the most valorous of the Texas drys have allowed it to become known that they want liquor prohibited to the general public, but are entirely willing to have it for themselves and their friends." The South in general, according to report, was chiefly interested in putting liquor out of reach of the negroes. A similar attitude has been revealed in other parts of the country where men of means "stocked up" heavily and then voted for prohibition on the ground that it is better to keep liquor away from the "lower classes." The difficulty in all this is that a restive majority never fails to resent a tax or privation which is not shared by a privileged minority, and serious disturbance is bound to result from inequality which, though not legal, is actual.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS

For some time the consumer has been inclined to despair, believing that he was in the grip of remorseless profiteers and that nothing could set him free. Words of hope merely irritate him, after he has listened to these so often in vain. Nevertheless from the consumer's point of view there does seem a rather more promising outlook now than for some time past. The abundant crops, reliably forcasted, ought to help a little, and there would seem to be some promise of relief in the reported slump in the 'luxury wave" with consequent beginning of decline in retail prices.

According to a special Washington dispatch, economic conditions now appear to indicate that war inflation is subsiding. Wholesale prices have dropped an average of 1 per cent in thirty days. Luxury tax receipts are falling off, and government officials are quoted as saying this is an indication that the national wave of extravagance has passed to such extravagance being attributed in part to high prices and profiteering.

One interesting indication of the slump in luxury buying is the complaint of candy merchants all over the country that their business is falling off. Candy factories are asking for licenses to sell sugar which they are now stocked up with in unnecessary quantities, such sales in surplus sugar, a government official is quoted, "should tend to reduce prices." The change from the causes indicated may be slight for some time, but every little helps.

There is never a lack of "hot politics" in Georgia, but usually there is an issue, which now would appear to be absent, for the fire-eating Tom Watson, who wants to go to the Senate is fighting the American Legion on the ground that its officers "forced Georgia boys to stand in muddy trenches in France, in a pouring rain, without shelter." The officer who rose and gave the howling orator the lie could more pointedly have called him a "nut." If soldiers had to endure nothing worse than a "pouring rain" now and then, there would be no need of a League of Nations to prevent war.

There is only trouble with the electric chair, according to a woman correspondent of the New York Times, is that it is not worked hard enough. Among those she would like to see strapped to sit in it are "gossips, scolds, liars and pests." She even names a dozen women of her acquaintance whom she would like to place at the end of the vast and endless procession of victims. To the marked regulating tendency of the times this excited female adds a quite prodigious thirst for gore.

Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Conan Doyle may get busier than ever now that the Anglican bishops in convention, while admitting possible usefulness in physical research, solemnly submit that "the practice of spiritualism as a cult involves subordination of the intelligence and will to unknown forces of personalities, and to that extent is an abdiction of self-control."

Lenine, like the former Kaiser, dreams of becoming a Napoleon, and, like the former kaiser, he seems to be fool enough to imagine that such things can be done from a luxurious office without hustling out and leading allies in prison.

Social Side of Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt was a believer in the amenities and civilities of public as well as private life. He had a very alert and correct sense of "form," writes Edward G. Lowry in the Review. It was one of his strongly marked traits, though little dwelt upon by his many biographers. He gathered about him while he was in the White House many agreeable, pleasant, civil spoken men whose chief apparent qualification was a distinct social background and tradition. They were not grubby, workaday persons at all, but rather men who had found the world a charming place of sojourn largely because their fathers and grandfathers had provided a solvent for the bread-and-cheese problem. For the most part they were the very best hunter and acquitted themselves creditably.

Test of Good Steel.

Good steel is not only hard but it has also an energy of its own. There are knives that will literally cut an iron nail, but nothing else, because they cannot be ground sufficiently fine as to let the blade pass through the material. The cutting ability of a pocket knife, a razor or a pair of shears is derived from the fineness of the edge. A fine edge can be produced only of steel that is full of life and springiness, because the blade must not cut only but must be able to select the most suitable spot for entering the material.

Art of Hopi Indians.

The art of southwestern Indians—the Hopis and Pueblos of New Mexico and Arizona—is one of the few survivals anywhere over the globe of a primitive art. To the Indian, action and cleancut expression of what he saw meant everything, while backgrounds and incidentals which fill in a painting, to the modern ideas, meant nothing. The Indian artist of today, like the primitive artist, wastes no brush strokes, and has no uncertainty about them. He is simple, direct, and all the beauty which goes with simplicity and directness goes with his work.

Death Valley Sand Storm.

A sandstorm in Death valley is a weird spectacle to behold. At times a cloudless gale, gathering heat as it hurries along between the blazing sun and white, hot sands of the desert, bursts through the passes of the Panamints like a blast of flame. There it picks up the hot dust and sand, and tossing them aloft in clouds ... the valley into a veritable pit ...

Valencia, Spain, has a tribunal which meets every Thursday at 12 o'clock in the morning to try offenses in connection with the conveying of water to the rice fields of the district. It is called the "water tribunal," and its members consist of peasants who elect their own president. The proceedings are all verbal and cost the parties concerned nothing. After a case has been tried and all witnesses have given their evidence fully, the tribunal discusses the affair in public and pronounces its decision. The "water court" dates from the Moorish period, and has retained its primitive simplicity and honesty through all the political changes that have taken place in Spain. Even the day of meeting is unchanged, Thursday having been the market day of the Moors.

"Beauty Marks."

What women will do to be thought beautiful is astounding even now; but listen to these facts and you will agree that in nineteen centuries femininity has gained something of common sense: In Japan women used to gild their teeth, while in the Indies they painted them red. Guzerat women blackened them. In Greenland they colored their faces blue and yellow. The fashion of patches came from Arabia, probably beginning with the astrological signs, but drifting into conceits like small ships cut from the black court plaster worn at the courts of the Louis. In the time of Louis XV women even went so far as to paste on moles in eyebrows.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Very Human—These Monkeys!

"Sitting dejectedly outside the camp," says Capt. William Ashley Anderson in his thrilling story of patrolling the African game country, "I watched a troop of baboons with rising interest; though droll, they are dangerous if you arouse their ill will. So I did not laugh to offend the lumbering elders; for I found they are also bound by laws as are their brothers, the human beings—have their conventions and live up to them. The old men are rough and surly, cynical with their women folk and annoyed at the clattering of the children; the women are patient but shy, dragging the whimpering young about."

Beautiful City of Petra.

The Rock City of Petra, situated at the southern end of the highlands of the Jordan river, is described in a National Geographic society bulletin as one of the strangest, most beautiful and most enchanting spots on earth. Petra is known as the "safe deposit" of caravans en route with precious wares to Tyre and Sidon. At the dawn of human history Petra became the central point to which the caravans from the interior of Arabia, Persia and India came laden with all the precious commodities of the East, and from which these commodities were distributed through Egypt, Palestine and Syria, and the countries bordering on the Mediterranean.

"Knocked Into a Cocked Hat."

This phrase is said to have originated as follows: In a game of nine-pins three pins were set up in form of a triangle and when all pins except these three were knocked down, the set was technically said to be "knocked into a cocked hat." This phrase in time came to mean "entirely out of shape" or out of "plumb." Another explanation is that the phrase refers to the cocked hat worn by naval officers which was so limp that it could be readily folded up in a shape quite unlike its original shape. Hence, the meaning of the term has come to be understood to be thoroughly beaten or altered beyond recognition.

Lucky Find of Manuscript

In 1595 the overseers of the parish of West Pennard, Somerset, England, needing a new cover for their rate book, chose sheets of parchment. The cover has lasted until now, and it has just been discovered that the parchment is more precious than the whole of the rate the little parish has been paying. The rate book is bound in what proves to be part of a fine written volume dating back eight hundred or nine hundred years. It belonged to the library of Glastonbury abbey, and the despised covering is priceless, as forming an important part of a work relating to times of which no other manuscript exists.

Australia in the north has a very handsome bird, the native companion (Grus Australasianus), and so very sociable with the white man. It is a very large bird, larger than any turkey, but not so large as an emu, and it flies—emus do not. It has long legs standing four feet high, gray feathers, head green. In company it will dance a quadrille most merrily. When flying it stretches its long legs out; when alighting it jumps several times before it can stop, and on rising it takes a run before it flies away.

NEXT TWO MONTHS FOR MOTOR DRIVING

July and August can no longer be called the months for motor touring. All present indications tend to show that they will be surpassed this year by September and October, two months which were considered fair touring months in previous years. Weather conditions has cut quite a figure in this respect in 1920, as the summer has been so uncertain that motor owners were somewhat dubious about making long trips. However, with a prospect of more settled weather for the coming two months it need not be surprising if motor trips become more popular than ever

MUST HAVE SURPRISED CZAR

John Randolph Had His Own Ideas of What to Do When Presented at Russian Court.

When John Randolph, erratic American statesman from Virginia, was in Russia he was about to be presented to the czar. Someone undertook to teach him the presentation etiquette of the Russian court. As minister he was to enter the room and bow; at the center of the room he was to bow a second time, after which the czar would meet him and engage in conversation. But Randolph was indignant at the very idea that anyone could presume to [illegible] and he loved that he [illegible] about it without [illegible]

[illegible] of presentation afforded [illegible] Randolph entered the door of the audience chamber and bowed very low; he advanced to the center of the room and bowed again very deeply. Then he approached nearer to the czar, took off one gauntlet and threw it to the right of the czar, pounced his other gauntlet and cast it to the left of the czar. Next he pulled off his hat, drew his sword and discarded it upon the floor and then fell upon his knees at the feet of the czar. The court was speechless and the czar astonished. However, the czar was equal to the occasion, so he approached the prostrate Randolph, required him to rise and engaged him in conversation. But the reception did not meet Randolph's expectations, and within a month he left Russia in considerable of a huff at what he deemed mistreatment at the hands of the czar.

HAS FOUND CRADLE OF EEL

Scientist Tells the World All About the Habits of That Migratory Aquatic Creature.

The eel has been tracked to his cradle [illegible]

It has taken us 2,000 years to learn that eels, living in ponds and rivers climb out when full grown, crawl over the land, find a river running to the ocean, go out to sea, and lay eggs which produce offspring that come back in billions up the rivers from which their parents descended, says London Tit-Bits.

A scientist has now tracked down these elusive marvels to the spawning grounds. It is the Sargasso sea, that enormous sea garden through which Columbus first sailed to the terror of his crews, from September to October, 1492. Of course, that is not the only nursery.

Upon hatching, the eel larvae drift with the current, undergo a marvelous transformation, reach Europe, swarm up the river, climb the banks, cross dusty fields and parched meadows to inland ponds and ditches, and then settle there for the next seven or eight years, when they swim back to the Sargasso to lay their eggs and die.

Is not that a crowning marvel of the migratory instinct? Across the Atlantic in infancy, to fatten in a wayside English pond, and back again, grown up, across the wide ocean.

Names.

Most men of high destinies have high sounding names. Pym and Habakuk may be pretty well, but they must not think to cope with the Cromwells and Isaiahs. And you could not find a better case to point them out of the English admirals. Drake and Rooke and Hawke are picked names for men of execution. Frobisher, Rodney, Boscawen, Penlleather, Jack Byron are all good to catch the eye in a page of a naval history. Cloudesley Shovel is a mouthful of quaint and sounding syllables. Benbow has a bulldog quality that suits the man's character, and it takes us back to those English archers who were his true comrades for plainness, tenacity and pluck. Raleigh is spirited and martial, and signifies an act of bold conduct in the field. . . .—"Virginibus Puerisque," by Louis Stevenson.

Spinning webs is second nature with spiders. After they are hatched from the eggs in a cocoon, they cling together for about a week. Then they separate, but their legs do not carry them very far. Facing the wind, and standing on the tips of their legs, the baby spiders raise their abdomens and emit a silken thread. The fairies' current wafts the gossamer in the air and when enough is let out to permit of aerial flight the insect drifts away. When it wishes to land it hauls in the thread. Wherever it lands it can spin webs without the slightest instructions from older spiders. Older male spiders seem to lose this gift. There are about 750 species of spiders in America, but only two, the house and garden spiders, are well known.

A Craven Suitor.

"I am convinced that I could never make you happy," wrote an abject lover to the lady who had won his heart. "You are of a different world from mine. You are to me as white marble to dull red clay. The devotion of my life would not recompense you for the sacrifice you would make in marrying me. I know I can never hope to make you happy, but if you think otherwise let me know by return." The woman who could accept so craven a lover as this can scarcely hope to be complimented on her judgment or on her capture.

DECIDES WHERE WOMEN MUST VOTE

The Attorney General's Department of Pennsylvania has advised the State Bureau of Elections that wives of State officers and employes must register and vote where their husbands vote. and the continue : movement away from the farm today greatly increases the economic importance of the farmer who stays on t. e job.

His numbers diminished, the nation's demands upon him for food and clothing increased, a great responsibility rests upon his shoulders.

Our many years of close cooperation with local farming interests have given us a practical, common-sense understanding of the farm's problems. This enables us to render a banking service which farmers find especially helpful under present conditions.

HARBINGERS of the Autumn Modes

For Lavishly Applied Enriches the Effectiveness of Advance Suit Modes

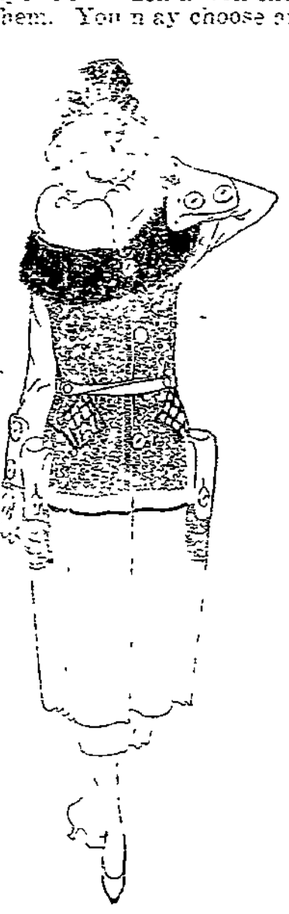
In several models this mode of trimming is combined with embroidery of dull gold. Sometimes embroidery is the only adornment the Suit boasts. And in still other designs, trimming, other than unique collars, cuffs, pockets and belts of shoe string width that encircle the waist two and three times, is omitted. Duvet de laine, tricotine, and velour are some of the fabrics shown. For color these New Suits cling tenaciously to the variously shades of brown.

Frocks Forecasting the Modes of Autumn

Judging from the early Autumn frock interpretations which we have assembled after considerable effort, the new season will see long sleeves return to favor. This, we are sure, will be true of woolen frocks, and those that are designed for street wear. Afternoon Dresses, many with them are of satin — have elbow sleeves. Tricotine is again a popular fabric and navy blue and brown vie for favor.

THE SMALLEST CHOKER ENDOWS ITS WEARER WITH CHARM

"She's a perfectly stunning costume, but she needs a bit of Fur at the throat to give it the proper finishing touch." How many times haven't you seen the wisdom of that critical assertion proved beyond a doubt? And nobody knows better than our Fur Buyer how much a well chosen Choker improves a frock or a suit so he has gathered together a really notable collection of them. You may choose any one of them at a very special price during our August Fur Sales.



And because we know that you are eager to learn "what's what" as regards Fall Hat fashions we extend to you a cordial invitation to come and see them at your first opportunity. Described below are a few of the modes which await your approval

Draped turbans and other little soft Hats of velvet metal cloth and velvet combined with Duvetyn, come in two and four color combinations, such as brown with blue and tan and black, brown with rose, brown with blue, brown with scarlet, also in solid colors ..... $5.95 to $11.50.

Beautiful pattern hats with drooping brims, beaded and embroidered in gold tinsel and silk. Hats trimmed in Autumn leafs with veils to match in all leading shades. Smart turbans of Duvetyn trimmed in genuine beaver fur with bag and scarf to match ..... $12.50 to $67.50

The Beauty of Sweaters Grows With Their Popularity

Colors that bid fair to rival those of the well press-agented rainbow add zest to the choosing of one's sweater.

No longer need one accept any but her favorite color just to secure a coveted style for Tuxedos, slipovers and other smart styles all offer a pleasing color range. Fancy stripe, block and diagonal weaves are other reasons why selling in this display is always spirited.

School is Looked Forward to When it Means the Wearing of Such Apparel as This

Exuberant youth needs Clothes that reflect its high spirits; Clothes that are simple, in good taste yet very modeartely priced withal. Such attire may be very easily and—and we might with truth say —speedily here. From the maiden who will soon depart for boarding school to the slightly older Miss who gravely contemplates return to college, the younger set will find fulfilment of all Wardrobe requirements in our displays.

The New Autumn Blouses

One of Fashion's Blouse edicts for Autumn is that sheer fabrics must give way to opaque materials. To prove that our presentations are always in keeping with her dictations we offer a variety of charming new Blouses in crepe de chine, taffeta and satin. Their styles, though varied, indicate outhentically the trend of Blouse modes. Come and see them.

The Skirts For Autumn Promise Departures From the Usual

A good thing to remember when one's thoughts are centered on the selection of a separate Skirt for Autumn is that great vogue is predicted for the modes that combine various woolen fabrics. Even a cleaner as this we are showing for the approval of our patrons a number of Autumn Skirts which carry out this theme wisely and well.
